PHASE 1:

The phase 1 is designed in a way to promote self learning, using the creativity and "out of the Box" attitude. The aim is to enable faculty to deliver global standard lectures and extend their role to being a facilitator for the 21st Century.

Day 1: 4 C's represents Communication, Collaboration, Creativity, and Critical Thinking. The first day talks about how these 4 Cs can be integrated into teaching. The core training focuses on the fundamentals of the current education system based on conceptual theory.

DIFFERENT WAYS OF ENGAGING LEARNERS
Learning and Teaching Styles	How might different learning and teaching styles impact learning?
Increasing Student Participation	How can you motivate students to participate?
Using Effective Questions	How can you use questions effectively in class?
Discussions	How can you use discussions to engage students?
Active Learning	What strategies can you use to help students be actively involved in their learning?
Collaborative Learning: Group Work	What strategies can you use to increase student learning through peer instruction and group work?
Problem-Based Learning	How can you use problem solving to increase student learning?

Day 2: Role Play & Demonstration

The second day of the Workshop is all about demonstrating and incorporating new skills into the current lecturing style of individual faculty. Where a faculty member selects an individual subject or topic and role-plays a lecture and implements Student Base Learning (SBL) techniques. In which they use various approaches to teach by using learners as an object or by making learners do activities to derive the topic. They use different teaching styles - starting from effective questioning, Video tutorials and also by giving real life examples for the Syllabus topics selected by them.
